Hi, Can someone please help with an issue I'm having with Office365 Themes? I've created an Office365 theme, along with templates for Word, Excel & PowerPoint, and I'd like to distribute these to all users within our organisation. Within the PS script I have: Install/Uninstall Command: My manual detection rule is: Unfortunately the install is reporting as failing on my test target device, which is AD Joined. I've checked to see if these files are copied anyway, but they are not. Any ideas on how to troubleshoot please? I'm not an expert on the IntuneManagementExtension logs. Thank you. We have been using Office 2013 for a little while now and there are a number of users complaining about going over their roaming profile quota. I've raised the Windows 7 GPO to allow 50mb profiles but while this has helped a few, there are still some people going over. The main culprit is the AppData\Roaming\Microsoft\Templates\LiveContent folder. I have changed the Office 2013 GPO to not allow template downloads from the internet and also excluded the LiveContent folder from roaming. This does not seem to have worked on a lot of users' systems though. This is the following "Prevent the following directories from roaming with the user profile" Downloads; AppData\Roaming\Microsoft\Document Building Blocks; AppData\Roaming\Microsoft\Templates\LiveContent; AppData\Roaming\Telephony; AppData\Roaming\PTC; AppData\Roaming\Autodesk; AppData\Roaming\Xerox; Creative Cloud Files; AppData\Roaming\Adobe Am I simply not putting the path relative to the root of the user's profile correctly? Double-clicking a Word document template in Windows Explorer will create a new document based on the styles in the template. For convenience, however, you can have your content templates appear in the New Document dialog and library templates (such as our Core Library templates) can be loaded automatically. Adding Templates to the Dialog To have your document templates appear in the dialog, you need to move (or copy) them into your Template folder using Windows Explorer. The location of the templates folder depends on the operating system you are using and it can be changed in Word by the end-user (you!) or a system administrator, if you are on a network. Finding the Templates Folder In Windows XP, the folder location is usually: In Windows Vista, it is usually: However, unless you've asked Windows to show hidden files and folders, the / folder may not be visible in Windows Explorer. If the folders aren't visible you can: Tell Windows Explorer to show hidden files and folders: choose from the menu. Select the page, and in the list, select . Type the path into the Windows Explorer address bar, if it is visible. This works, even if the folders are hidden. The address bar is always visible in Vista. If it isn't visible in XP, choose from the menu. Use Word to open the folder (see below). Choose Explore from the context menu to open the Templates folder One of the easiest ways to find the Templates folder is to open it from within Word using this simple trick. It is much easier to do than explain, but here is the step-by-step process: Open Word's dialog by selecting from the menu. Switch to the tab. Select the item from the list. Click the button. We aren't going to modify the location, but clicking this button will show a standard Windows file dialog. Note the name of the current folder at the top of the dialog box. This is Word's template folder. Now move up one level in the file dialog that appears. Find the template folder in the file dialog and right click on it. It is usually called . Choose from the context menu that appears. A new Windows Explorer window will open where you can move or copy your templates. Organizing the Templates Folder You can organise templates into groups by placing them inside sub-folders of the Templates folder. A separate tab for each sub-folder is displayed in Word's New Document dialog. Automatically Loading Templates You can make macros, keyboard shortcuts and autotext entries available to all documents by storing them in a template and automatically loading the template when Word starts. To automatically load a template when Word starts, place a shortcut to the template in Word's startup folder. The location of the Startup folder can be changed by users and administrators. In Windows XP, the startup folder is usually: In Windows Vista, it is usually: To find out where Word expects to find startup items, open the dialog from Word's menu. On the page, you find a entry. This is the path where Word expects to find items to load at startup. You can use the trick described above to open this folder from Word. Download Report Templates You can find a number of Word templates for reports and technical writing on our site including a: Allows you to save all the formatting that has been applied to a chart as a template so it can be quickly applied to subsequent charts. Once you have created and formatted your chart it is possible to save it as a template so it can be used again. Click on the chart and select (Chart Tools, Design tab) (Save As Template) This will display the Save Chart Template dialog box. All your chart templates are saved in the following folder: Excel 2016 - C:\Users\username\AppData\Roaming\Microsoft\Templates\Charts) Excel 2021 - C:\Users\username\AppData\Roaming\Microsoft\Templates\Charts) Excel 2019 - C:\Users\username\AppData\Roaming\Microsoft\Templates\Charts) All your chart templates have a ".ctx" file extension. All your chart templates save the exact colours with reference to a specific theme.
